2019 ALL ABILITIES MARKETPLACE

"Empowering kids with disabilities."

Our first annual All Abilities Marketplace will be a unique indoor/outdoor event. All vendors will be children with disabilities as they are recognized for their strengths and enabled to boost their confidence for the workplace. Your contribution will empower families and help us bring hope and resources to our community.

Something So Worth It Mission Statement

Mission

Something So Worth It (SSWI) empowers children with permanent disabilities and their families by providing hope, connection, inclusion and education.

Vision

We feature the strengths of the entire family by offering joyful and supportive resources. Our goal is to create a world where parents do not feel isolated and children feel highlighted in a positive way.

Our Values

Hope- We strive to be first responders to families from the point of diagnosis and during times of crisis by offering love and joy. Our organization aims to be a ray of sunshine to remind families they are supported.

Connection- Our team will have events and resources that motivate the entire family and provide them with tools for success.

Inclusion- We will bring awareness to the community that children with disabilities have the same desires as other children and are an important contribution to society.

Education- Families have so much to learn from one another and our team will bring parents, caregivers and children together to build each other up and learn more about navigating their disability.

Why We Do This

Did you know that more children are born with disabling conditions every year? Due to access to resources and accurate information, families are choosing to raise their special needs children while navigating a complicated world. This demographic of children is growing yet resources are not increasing at the same rate. Families need to be reminded they are not alone, and a large community is rallying behind.

What Makes Us Different

Our organization was founded from personal experience on knowing what it feels like to have children with disabilities. We know first-hand it can be a lonely and stressful way to live and SSWI wants to shift the perspective to joy while offering supportive tools. We grant sunshine gifts boxes to families and these gifts have sentimental and thoughtful items that target a range of situations from a new diagnosis, a hospital stay, caregiver burnout, loneliness and more. Our boxes welcome families into our community and our events and roundtable sessions create a consistent source of encouragement. By empowering our community with knowledge on their child's diagnosis, children are setup for independence and success.
